DETAILED ACTION

1. This office action is in response to communication filed on 1/24/06. Claims 3 and 19 are canceled. Claim 1 has been amended. Claims 1, 2, 4 – 12, 16 – 18 and 20 are pending on this application. Claims 1 and 16 are independent claims.
2. Per Applicant's Amendment filed on 10/26/04, claims 13-15 explicitly stated as CANCELLED (see 10/26/04 "claims" in EDAN). Applicant can not bring back "CANCELLED CLAIMS" as "WITHDRAWN" or "PREVIOUS WITHDRAWN".

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 16 - 18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Ooishi U.S. patent No. 6,175,532 B1 - filed: May 21, 1999.

Regarding independent claim 16, (Fig. 64 [1602]) of Ooishi discloses method implemented within a memory driver (Fig. 54 [1602]) comprising: receiving at least a subset (Fig. 64 [A1 - A8]) of an address for promotion to a memory (Fig. 54 [1600]), and selectively [1616] replacing at least the subset (output of [1614]) of the received address [A1 – A8] with a process identifier (Fig. 64 [1610]) if it is determined (Col. 65 lines 37 – 39) that the subset (A1 – A8) of the received addresses is composed of zeroes (Col. 58 lines 45 - 50).

Regarding dependent claim 17, Fig. 55C of Ooishi further comprising:
analyzing the received subset [A3, A4] of the address [A1, A2, A3, A4] to determine whether the subset of composed of zeroes (first row of A3, A4 in Fig. 55C) and, if so, to provide an indication (Fig. 64 (Coincidence)) to a multiplexing element (Fig. 64 [1616]) to replace the received subset of the address with the process identifier (Fig. 64 (1610 [Coincidence])).

Regarding dependent claim 18, Ooishi discloses a method implemented within a memory driver (Fig. 64) according to claim 17, further comprising: asserting either the received address [1614], or a modified version [1612] thereof based, at least in part, on whether the received subset of the address is composed of zeroes (Col. 58 lines 32 - 34).

Allowable Subject Matter

4. Claims 1, 2, 4 - 12, and 20 are allowed.

With respect to claim 1, in addition to other elements in the respective claim, the prior art fails to teach or suggest "a pulse generator element, to receive a clock signal and produce at least two reference signals, overlapping yet offset from one another in time; and one or more driver elements, coupled to the multiplexing element and responsive to the pulse generator element, to receive content promoted from the multiplexing element during a precharge phase the reference signals, and to assert the content received from the multiplexer to the memory during a discharge phase of the reference signals".

Dependent claims 2, 4 – 12 and 20 are allowed based on independent claim 1 above.

Response to Arguments

5. Applicant's arguments filed 1/24/06 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Under remarks, applicant argued "Ooishi does not disclose replacing some portion of received address with a process identifier" Therefore, Ooishi does not anticipate claims 16 – 19. Examiner respectfully disagrees from the following:

Fig. 64 of Ooishi discloses a process for output an internal address for memory array (Fig. 54 [1600]); wherein the process (Fig. 4[1602]) is replacing the received address [A1-A8] with the process identifier (1610 [Coincidence]). On Col. 65 lines 37 – 50, Ooishi clearly teach the process identifier [1610] generates the detection signals [Coincidence, Non-Coincidence] according to the comparison of [1610], and selective replacing the output address signal of [1614] with the output address signal of [1612] when the process identifier [1610] generating the Coincidence detecting signal.

Per explained above, reference "Ooishi" from previous office action is applying to the following rejections.
